Potential Benefits

- Strength in Stability: A bank is deemed „systemically important“ due to its size, interconnectedness, financial infrastructure, complexity, and cross jurisdictional activity; these banks form the cornerstone of the global financial system and must conform to intense regulatory requirements.¹
- Cash is King: The cash assets of small banks have declined significantly relative to cash assets of large banks since monetary policy began tightening in 2022 to combat inflation; with greater reserves of cash, large banks are generally better positioned to weather customer withdrawals and interest rate risk.²
- Loan Exposure: The largest banks have significantly less exposure to commercial and industrial loans relative to small banks; as the demand for commercial real estate declines with more employees working from home, the largest banks are generally more insulated from forecasted commercial and industrial loan defaults.³

The performance data quoted represents past performance and does not guarantee future results. Investment return and principal value of an investment will fluctuate so that an investor's shares, when sold or redeemed, may be worth more or less than their original cost. Current performance may be higher or lower than the performance quoted. High short-term performance, when observed, is unusual and investors should not expect such performance to be repeated. Returns for periods greater than one year are annualized.

Investing involves risk, including the possible loss of principal. Banks are especially subject to the adverse effects of economic recession, currency exchange rates, government regulation, decreases in the availability of capital, volatile interest rates, portfolio concentrations in geographic markets and in commercial and residential real estate loans, as well as competition from new entrants. In addition, banks are subject to extensive regulation at both the federal and state level, which may affect permissible activities, profitability and the amount of capital that they must maintain. International investments may involve risk of capital loss from unfavorable fluctuation in currency values, from differences in generally accepted accounting principles, or from economic or political instability in other nations. Emerging markets involve heightened risks related to the same factors as well as increased volatility and lower trading volume. Narrowly focused investments may be subject to higher volatility. GSIB is non-diversified.

Shares of ETFs are bought and sold at market price (not NAV) and are not individually redeemed from the Fund. Brokerage commissions will reduce returns. The market price returns are based on the official closing price of an ETF share or, if the official closing price isn't available, the midpoint between the national best bid and national best offer ("NBBO") as of the time the ETF calculates current NAV per share, and do not represent the returns you would receive if you traded shares at other times. NAVs are calculated using prices as of 4:00 PM Eastern Time. Indices are unmanaged and do not include the effect of fees, expenses, or sales charges. One cannot invest directly in an index.
