Potential Benefits

- Cash is King: Generally, companies with high cash flows are more resilient in times of duress given their self-sufficiency to fund ongoing operations.
- Cost of Capital: As the cost of capital rises with tighter monetary policy, company cash reserves have rapidly depleted relative to debt since 2021; companies with high cash flows are generally better positioned to service existing debts and less reliant on external financing, which has become more expensive.<sup>1</sup>
- Strength in Stability: 80% of small cap firms have interest coverage ratios less than 4, reflecting a greater risk of default amongst most companies; companies with high cash flows are generally less susceptible to shocks in financing and typically have higher interest rate coverage ratios.<sup>2</sup>

The performance data quoted represents past performance and does not guarantee future results. Investment return and principal value of an investment will fluctuate so that an investor's shares, when sold or redeemed, may be worth more or less than their original cost. Current performance may be higher or lower than the performance quoted. High short-term performance, when observed, is unusual and investors should not expect such performance to be repeated. Returns for periods greater than one year are annualized.

Investing involves risk, including possible loss of principal. There is no assurance that companies with current high free cash flow yields will continue to maintain high free cash flow yields in the future. SMCF is non-diversified.

Shares of ETFs are bought and sold at market price (not NAV) and are not individually redeemed from the Fund. Brokerage commissions will reduce returns. The market price returns are based on the official closing price of an ETF share or, if the official closing price isn't available, the midpoint between the national best bid and national best offer ("NBBO") as of the time the ETF calculates current NAV per share, and do not represent the returns you would receive if you traded shares at other times. NAVs are calculated using prices as of 4:00 PM Eastern Time. Indices are unmanaged and do not include the effect of fees, expenses, or sales charges. One cannot invest directly in an index.
